

Utah County Employee of the Month for September 2012

Brady Christensen – Maintenance Supervisor

Public Works

We would really like to raise a glass and salute a long time employee for his heroic and widely chronicled efforts to keep everything greased, shiny, blooming, flowing, and fully functioning. Of course, we're speaking of our humble Brady Christensen.

If it cools, heats, lights up, runs water, flushes, dispenses fuel, moves, sits, hums, sings, or occupies space and time, then Brady knows how to keep "it" in tune, on time, and under control. Brady is the guy who oversees the daily maintenance and operations of several Utah County buildings, parks, the fair grounds, the shooting range, both animal shelters, the Children's Justice Center, and every other square inch of glass, brick, mortar, tubing, piping, venting, lighting, wiring, coloring, and carpet with a County logo on it. In fact, about the only building that doesn't bear Brady's signature is the County Security Center and that's probably because his mother told him that she never wanted to see him inside a jail.

Brady's been working for the county for just over 21 years now and about the only project that he hasn't been able to complete is installing a sky light and wainscoting in a certain office space that shall go unnamed. But even when questioned, he always has a smile, or an answer and that's why he's a favorite Q&A person and one of the most qualified workers in any roomful of people.

Brady and his wife have two children and have added a daughter-in-law. For fun and games, they like to head out to Fairview in Sanpete County where they enjoy their massive cabin in the mountains, indulging in hiking, hunting, snowmobiling, and a plethora of other manly pursuits. One will also find Brady's mark in a recent issue of "AH" magazine (Addicted Hunters). According to fish and game personnel, Brady bagged the biggest deer of his career last fall which prompted a flood of tears from the PETA crowd.

So as a group of coworkers who have marveled from afar, we would like to nominate Brady Christensen as our employee of the month. And if our request is honored, we would like to suggest that he be given, along with the usual honors and platitudes, a box of Red Hots or Tootsie Rolls. Either of those candies keep Brady regulated. And a "regular" Brady, is a happy Brady.
