5. State Storm Water program updates

Mike George and Harry Campbell from DEQ answered questions regarding the latest State online Storm Water permit program. They demonstrated with a power point presentation along with some hands on training.
They explained that N.O.T. forms are not required to be mailed in to the State once a permittee does an electronic termination. Once the electronic process is completed it becomes an unconfirmed termination. After the city inspector completes his final inspection, he can electronically complete the termination and the process is done. The city inspector can request a hard copy of the N.O.T. from the permittee to keep for his records if he wishes.
Coalition members were given handouts for Industrial and Construction SIC codes. They recommended conducting high priority operations such as auto wrecking yards and gravel pits. They had suggestions and direction regarding SEV and EPA codes. At this time, municipalities are able to assign city codes to enforce compliance in their jurisdictions before having to assign SEV codes, as long as they follow up on the permits making sure the permittee has made changes and to comply. Since non-qualified city programs are not tracked by the EPA as of yet, they recommended following a program similar to the EPA that program will create a history of compliance or non-compliance for the permittee.

The EPA requires that 10% of all active construction permits each year are followed up on for inspections.

The State is working to getting more qualified local programs up and running.

They also discussed matters such as NOI/Fugitive dust permits. They are working on trying to come up with a simplified form that can be used. This permit is a requirement in counties such as Utah County, Salt Lake County, and Ogden County.
